

Miami Herald Coral Gables

Posted on Thursday, 07.11.13

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Historic preservation group presents scholarships

Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk, Malcolm Matheson Distinguished Professor of Architecture and Dean University of Miami School of Architecture; Ann Rosalind Goodman, President of HPACG; HPACG scholarship winner Francela Veliz; Jorge L. Hernandez, Professor and Coordinator of the Historic Preservation Certificate Program University of Miami School of Architecture; HPACG scholarship winner Talia Cires; HPACG member Maria Alicia Asrani

BY CHRISTINA MAYO

SPECIAL TO THE MIAMI HERALD

Congratulations to architecture scholarship winners Francela Veliz and Talia Cires, who were recognized by the Historic Preservation of Coral Gables Association with $1,000 scholarships at the recent University of Miami School of Architecture Honors Ceremony.

Veliz and Cires were chosen for their proven academic achievement and interest in the area of historic preservation.

HPACG President Ann Goodman and member Maria Alicia Ajit presented the scholarships with School of Architecture Dean Elizabeth P later-Zyberk and Jorge L. Hernandez, professor and coordinator of the Historic Preservation Certificate Program, also in attendance.

“HPACG is proud to support students who are passionate about historic preservation. We wish them well in their future endeavors and hope they continue to pursue their interests,” Goodman said.

The Historic Preservation Association of Coral Gables was founded in 1991 with the mission to “support an environment in which its members and all community citizens can understand, appreciate, exchange information and live with Coral Gables history.”